East Kentucky Science Center & Planetarium Re-Opening

The East Kentucky Science Center and Planetarium, an absolute treasure to our community, is officially reopening Tuesday, November 16th. The Science Center has undergone an extensive remodel and welcomes a new Executive Director, Chrysta Ghent, following the retirement of former director, Steve Russo. They also have new educational programming. Holiday programs, including festive laser and planetarium shows, begin November 30th, which will be out of this world. Follow them on Instagram and Facebook to stay up-to-date.

ARTIST SPOTLIGHT

Corbin Fouts

Corbin Fouts is an Appalachian folk artist based out of Floyd County, Kentucky. She first dove into painting during the summer of 2015 with a simple art project. Since then, Fouts has delved into all art mediums. Through the use of vibrant colors and expression, she has aspired to capture her personal view of lore and myth. Fouts draws inspiration from stories told by the old timers of her area and her own experiences in music and travel. She uses bold techniques and vibrant colors to draw outsiders into her view of the topics.

She currently has her art displayed through the eastern side of the United States. Her artwork may be seen year round and purchased at The Mountain Muse of Prestonsburg Kentucky. Her art is displayed in many homes of Eastern Kentucky with a very loyal following. This month and through December, her art will be on exhibit at the Mountain Arts Center Art Gallery.
